DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 and 7-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kawano et al (2002/0066276).

Kawano et al '276, discloses a rotary valve for a cryogenic cooler. Paragraphs 107,137 and 164 discuss how the first and second valve elements are pushed to the seats by gas pressure. It is noted that the seats are on opposite sides of the discs, so one is pushed toward the motor while the other is pushed away from the motor. The figures show the placement of the ports.

Claims 1 and 7-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kawano et al (6,460,349).

Kawano et al '349, discloses a rotary valve for a cryogenic cooler. Lines 35-41 of column 8 discuss how the first and second valve elements are pushed to the seats by gas pressure. It is noted that the seats are on opposite sides of the discs, so one is pushed toward the motor while the other is pushed away from the motor (the first valve seat is pushed toward the motor while the second is pushed away). The figures show the placement of the ports. Reference numeral 410 represents the buffer volume connected to the distal end of the valve.

Claims 1 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Koyama et al (2004/0040315).

Koyama et al shows in figure 2, a valve for a pulse tube cooler with a motor 32, a valve disk 30 and a valve seat 20 with a high pressure volume 26 pushing the valve seat toward the motor axially.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 2-6 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
